4 Bright Buckeye Girl Replies to
George M. Mann

AND BLAMES EDITOR BOK

For Creating and Fostering Much of the Folly that Women are Compared For.

Dear Mr. Van Ormer:

Inasmuch as there are always two sides to every question, no doubt the Gazette readers will be interested in the following letter from Miss Eva Reedy, of Elyria, Ohio, to George M. Mann, formerly of Bedford. Miss Reedy is the daughter of Editor Reedy, publisher of the Elyria Democrat. Mr. Reedy is one of the veteran editors of the Buckeye State.

Miss Reedy's Letter

My dear Mr. Mann:

Your exceedingly interesting article in the Bedford Gazette, on Elbert Hubbard and the Roycrofters, has been read by us all. Of your enthusiasm there can be no doubt. Knowing something of Mr. Hubbard's ideas through a certain degree of familiarity with his writings in The Philistine, and having seen more than a few of his books, although we do not possess more than one, yet I can say that I look upon him as having solved the problem of living. A few short years ago, he was extremely popular, and the demand for Roycroft shop books as gift books at holiday time helped to solve the momentous question of "What shall I give Mary or Harry for Christmas?", many times regardless of the contents hidden beneath the soft leather covers. They were within the reasonable price of things—and looked exceedingly well and gently hinted to the one to whom we gave, that we knew how to select a fine-looking present. Without a doubt the fad has passed, and I have often wondered whether enough of general interest has remained to keep the profits of the establishment up to the requirements of a successful business enterprise.

No matter how much we rebel against commercialism and its fault of all-absorption, yet it remains the paramount tendency of the age. It is delightful to think upon those days of the long ago, when the art instincts of a race grew and thrived, but along side of their development we find oppression and ignorance, and human life a very cheap article.

Perhaps one colony like Mr. Hubbard's may flourish for a time, but when the master mind is gone and lived out its generation, unless another equally great arise and fill its place, it must become disintegrated. No thinking person but will agree with Mr. Hubbard and his foregoers, William Morris and the Roycroft brothers, and all who have stood for the true and the beautiful, that beauty and simplicity are strongly related. His method of solving the problem would hold good if there were comparatively few of us in the world. The very complexity of our lives is a saving grace to the body politic, for where would subsistence come from were we all to lead the simple life of making all things needed by our own hands?

As it is, Mr. Hubbard's idea exists only in practical form because there is a large number of people, in this country in particular, who have money to spend in his products because they believe in him, but can not stop in their career to fashion by hand their wants.

In your article you leave a brick at the modern dresser covered with "knick-knacks," as you call them, and the modern house with its lace curtains and drapery. While I myself am a thorough believer in the light sitting room and the cozy and cranny of a home, and any one having a knowledge of modern house-keeping will admit that furnishings are dust traps at best, yet we cannot get away from them much as we would wish it.

Let us consider the tendency of the modern woman, she of the "womanly type," so much exploited through The Ladies' Home Journal by Edward Bok. It is essentially feminine to desire to beautify her surroundings, and that is why so many of them spend the spare moments in evolving things that appeal to them as beautiful. In spite of Mr. Hubbard there are many beautiful things in handicraft and the symbolism attached to the evolution of an idea, that appeals to other minds. He will not allow this when he will not admit of carving. I presume to him Japanese art appears as being the most degenerate and decadent type, and yet to many of us it is extremely beautiful in certain of its characteristics.

From the savage up, every one of us is trying to give expression to some kind of an art ideal. Mr. Hubbard has his, and those people of a similar mental and emotional leaning, believe him to be the apostle of the true gospel of living. But there are those who love symbolism, that lentage of the past ages, and must their ideas be deepened?

The log cabin, its roaring fire, its strong neighborly friendships have passed with the forest. Men are set in communities and in such they must be developed. We all act and re-act upon one another, and much as we are loath to admit it, there is constantly going on the struggle to determine who is fittest to survive.

You quote Edward Bok as an authority in the matter of the simple

Writes Interesting Letter From North Carolina.

Asheville, N. C., March 28, 1907. Since writing you last I have done considerable traveling. I have seen many places and feasted my eyes on some of the grandest scenery one gets to see; it was the mountains in North Carolina and I know of no place where they seem so grand as about this city.

Waynesville, N. C., is about twenty miles from here and all up hill. I heard someone say "Waynesville is a county seat and the home of many northern persons, most of them having come on account of the climate, which has proved so beneficial to those having lung trouble. The altitude is 2,700 feet. The streets are all paved, the sidewalks are all granolithic and these insure clean houses for there is no mud to be carried into Aunt Peggy's parlor.

Some distance, probably a mile or so, from the town is the Eagle's Nest; it is an elegant up-to-date hotel, away up on a very high cliff. 'Tis a very popular hotel and accommodates those who have big bills. The morning I was there, while at Waynesville, it was most delightful; one could see the snow frost or frozen fog on the Eagle's Nest and the mountains around it.

I know of no manufacturers here. Blackwell & Bushnell have a large wholesale grocery here and to save me I don't see where they sell all the Fort Bedford's that they buy, as well as the other goods. They are gentlemen of the first water and when one opens the door he is at once made welcome by the tone of voice which denotes the same, saying "Come in and have a chair." There is a station on the way up called Turnpike or Tollgate. I don't remember which, and just about this place the grade of the railroad is so steep that an engine labors very hard to get the train past it. I think that is the reason it was named Tollgate.

Hendersonville, N. C., is twenty-seven miles south of Asheville; it is another health town that in winter and summer is crowded with northern guests. At this season, which is betwixt their busy seasons, the town seems very quiet but those who live here all the time have it pat. I asked a merchant what they did for a living and he said that winter and summer they were "kept very busy picking northern nabobs." This town is most beautifully situated and has all the modern conveniences, even to a white barber shop. The saying about picking northern nabobs reminds me of one of the many original sayings of Ben Garretson, who lived many years in Bedford. Some friend from the country, with whom Garretson had some dealings, asked him how the people of Bedford made a living, saying: "I don't see them work and they seem to be well dressed." Mr. Garretson said: "You see, we have court several times a year and at such times all our country friends come to town, when we regularly pick them and between courts we pick each other." Was there ever a truer word spoken?

Asheville is only nineteen hundred and eighty feet high, yet it is considered a very healthy city. It is one of a very few more in the state that have license to sell liquor. The strong temperance wave that has been sweeping every town and city before it in many of the southern states, has not yet reached this city. It is here that consumptives flock for treatment. The hotels or many of them have printed in bold type across their letter heads: "No consumptives taken here." Yet one can hear the muffled cough, go where you will. Besides the hotels there are many private sanitariums and boarding houses where those afflicted are cared for. If any of your readers intend coming here they will find an elegant home at 20 North French Road, The Lyndhurst, kept by Mrs. Jones. The rooms are all outside rooms, nicely furnished. The location one of the prettiest in the city and the table well supplied with the substantial things upon which the hungry feed. The food is well prepared and the service fine; all for a price that is very reasonable. The landlady tried to do all that anyone could do to make the place seem like home. I just hear Harper Hafer say: "I wonder how much Heck gets for this service." Not a cent, save to be of service to any of the many readers of The Gazette seeking a place to board in Asheville. One sees many elegant turnouts here; the footman and coachman can be seen with many carriages. Very many ride horseback, claiming the exercise thus obtained is much preferable to any other kind.

The climate is great and I always feel so light when here that I hate to leave the place. I can breathe so much easier. I imagine than anywhere else. Vanderbilt's place, called Blitmore, is just outside the city limits. It is a beautiful section, having been toned down and the rough edge taken off with the many thousands of cartwheels that he has unloaded here. He has an immense garden from which, in season, his teams take fresh vegetables to Asheville every morning. Then he has a dairy of Jersey cows, takes milk to the city and asks ten cents a quart for it. However there are other dairies that sell it at eight cents a quart. Ice is high. I wish that I had a Gazette to read this evening.

EASTER BELLS

I think of the garden after the rain;
And hope to my heart comes singing,
"At morn the cherry-blossoms will be white,
And the Easter bells be ringing!"
—Edna Dean Procter.

EASTER LILIES

Ring, snow-white bells, your purest praise
To glorify this Easter day,
And let our risen Saviour's joy
Your voiceless, fragrant breath employ—
Fill every valley with perfume
And lighten death's appalling gloom,
Teach ye our troubled hearts the way
To trust our Saviour every day.
—W. J. R. Taylor.

EASTER MORNING

The fasts are done; the Aves said;
The moon has filled her horn;
And in the solemn night I watch
Before the Easter morn.
So pure, so still the starry heaven,
So hushed the brooding air,
I could hear the sweep of an angel's wings
If one should earthward fare.
—Edna Dean Procter.

HARRISBURG LETTER

Work of the Last Few Days in the Legislature.

Harrisburg, March 27.—The Homsher Trolley Freight bill passed second reading in the House after a rather strenuous fight. Representative Creasy's amendment to the bill compelling trolleys to carry freight was defeated. Mr. McClain, the Speaker of the House, left the Chair and came on the floor in the defense of the bill without the mandatory amendments. He insisted that the bill was not drafted by representatives of steam railroads but that he, himself, wrote it and brought it to Harrisburg and gave it to his fellow representative from Lancaster county to present. Finally a compromise was effected, leaving to the local authorities the right to decide the nature of the freight to be carried.

The Public Roads Committee of the House at a meeting had under consideration the bill which has passed the Senate and which appropriates $2,000,000 to the State Highway Department for the next two years. The committee is practically unanimous for an increase of this amount to $5,000,000 and proposes to amend the bill which was introduced by Senator Roberts. The committee will call on Governor Stuart and endeavor to convince him that a $5,000,000 appropriation is necessary for road purposes.

The fight of the people of the state for the right of local option has been transferred from the Law and Order Committee to the House. The committee, as was expected, reported the Craven local option bill out with a negative recommendation. Out of the twenty-five members on the committee, sixteen voted against that bill and but two favored it. The action of the Law and Order Committee cannot be regarded as reflecting the sentiment of the House on the subject of local option. Nine members out of every ten have been hoping that the local option question would be disposed of by the Law and Order Committee in a manner that would enable them to avoid going on record. The friends of the Craven bill are determined, however, that every member of the Legislature shall stand up and be counted.

One of the most puzzling mysteries connected with the cost of the furnishing of the new State Capitol was solved before the Capitol Investigation Commission. The question of why it was that John B. Sanderson was the successful bidder for the work of furnishing the costly building was answered. In 1904 a resolution was passed by the Board of Public Grounds and Buildings which provided for estimates on the entire job. Subsequently, by the newspaper advertisements for bids and by verbal statements from Governor Pennypacker, Auditor General Snyder and Superintendent Shumaker, the prospective bidders were informed that they might bid upon separate items. They did—and the forgotten resolution was not quoted to them. None of them ever heard of it before but Sanderson did. He was the only one who bid for the whole job and he got it; the profits he made, in some cases were enormous.

Governor Stuart signed the bill creating the office of assistant Deputy Attorney General at a salary of $2,500 a year and authorizing the appointment of an additional stenographer in the Attorney General's office at a salary of $1,000.

It is the first of the three railroad reform pledges in the Republican and Democratic party platforms to be ratified by the Legislature. This bill becomes operative September 30 next.

THE OTHER SIDE

life, as one laying down the law that determine it. I am afraid that is a good sentiment to put on his editorial page about once in so often. As an unprejudiced person, I wish you would take the current issue of the Home Journal, look at it carefully from the cover with the design of the beautiful red-hatted woman, to the last printed word on the last cover sheet. Do you call him an expert worthy of the name of a belle in the simple life? Everything that can be assembled into one magazine of interest to the modern woman, is there; and it is of the most stimulating variety, too.

No matter if it be cooking, laundering, the care of the home, how to be happy, though married, how to entertain the next church social or give a well-ordered dinner, or how to enjoy a picture, practice the piano, or make over Johnny's out-grown garments for the next youngest.

When Jennie sees the pretty clothes for young girls in its pages each month, Jennie's desire for things like other girls have at school feeds upon what it sees. Mother, anxious in her heart that her young daughter shall have all the pleasure which she found lacking in her own colorless youth, scans the family income, and most frequently cuts out something that would have enhanced her own appearance, and Jennie has pretty new garments.

Of course it is all wrong, and we women must bear the brunt of it. Why not put it all down to that comprehensive term, "the tendency of the times," and write Eddie Bok that he is as truly commercial as any of the leaders of a great enterprise? Where the pity of it all is, is that we should listen to him, when month after month he sends out to the million women readers the condensed complexity commercially called "The Ladies' Home Journal." I should not find fault with him if he would not be honestly consistent and keep all this gush out of his editorial columns about the simple life.

Now, honestly, I believe you will find this one thing to be absolutely true, that the pumpkin pie mother made back in the days of youth will always have a different taste from that which we scan so critically at middle age.

I do believe if men and women could live more in the open air, cultivate the acquaintance of beautiful flowers and of Nature, much that is complex and seems necessary to our existence would be undesired. It is a truth that our appetites are no longer healthful.

I could not resist the temptation to defend the other side, although I started out just to tell you how much I enjoyed reading your very readable article.

Sincerely,
EVA L. REEFY.

Elyria, Ohio, February 24, 1907.

Mr. Mann's Reply

Dear Miss Reefy:
Your good letter received. I perused it three times, and each time it sounded good to me, although I can not agree with you in all you say. You are mistaken when you say there is no longer a demand for Roycroft books. If the demand started as a fad, as you say, it has certainly developed into a substantial and profitable business. When I visited the Roycroft Shop last January, they were getting ready to move the bindery into larger quarters, having outgrown their old shop. And when I complained because my Christmas orders had not been filled, they apologized and said the demand for books during the holiday season had been so great that it was impossible to fill all orders.

Again: Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard do not object to carrying. They have the good sense and the good taste, however, to put carving where it belongs, and it is certainly out of place on furniture. Paint is a good thing on a house or barn, but a hideous thing on a woman's face. See?

I do not know anything about Japanese art. If their carving at the (St. Louis) World's Fair can be taken as a criterion, good Lord deliver us from it. Their carved furniture showed great ingenuity, but it was not beautiful, and the housekeeper who would attempt to keep it clean should be pitted.

Those ingenious little Japs, the Jews of the Orient, have keen business minds. They know how to coax money out of your pocket. They put this carved stuff upon the market and get big prices for it, yet I am told that one seldom finds it in their homes. The Japanese live a truly sensible life.

I am personally acquainted with a man and wife (Americans), who have made themselves independent manufacturing and selling tissue paper flowers. But they have no tissue paper flowers in their beautiful home. There they have the real thing. They sell the artificial but have the genuine in their home.

If we would study the tastes of an individual or a people, we must go into their homes, and not judge them by the trash they put upon the market. The market is the place to study commercialism, and not the place to study art.

My article on Elbert Hubbard and his Roycrofts in the Bedford Gazette attracted more attention than anything I have ever written. Have received many letters from different parts of the country commending and criticizing the article. Some from the Sunny South, some from California, one from Texas, a number from the East, and yesterday I received one from Cuba. People from whom I had not heard in years, and people who are strangers to me, took their pens in hand and told me what they thought about my thoughts. Have been showered with brick-bats and bouquets.

Mr. James B. Shires, of Mansfield, Ohio, put this bunch of flowers in his letter: "I read your Roycroft story in the Bedford Gazette, and enjoyed it hugely, as I do all your articles. There is a boldness, frankness and honesty about your articles that many men do not show in their writings. In other words—a simplicity and fairness that is refreshing."

Here is a nice bunch of thistles from a married woman who never cooked a meal and never wore a gingham apron. Listen: "You write just like a man who has had no home training whatever since he was a kid. What you really need is a wife to shake you over some hot coals occasionally and roast those foolish notions about log cabins and curtainless rooms out of your head. An old bachelor telling married people how to furnish their homes is enough to make a horse laugh." Whew! That's what the boys call "hot stuff."

A gentleman residing in Washington, D. C., wrote on a Roycroft postcard: "You and I are on the same wire as to the Simple Life, which you saw so beautifully exemplified at East Aurora. Your Roycroft story in the Bedford Gazette sounded real."

An enthusiastic Roycroft girl almost made me blush when she sent this bunch of fragrant roses: "I am more than proud of you, and your article on the Roycrofts in the Bedford Gazette is immense. Everyone I showed it to is delighted with it." Be sure and come to East Aurora next summer and bring your sister with you."

Another lady sent me a log cabin bill-of-fare. Here it is: "Mush and milk for supper, fried mush for breakfast, and left over mush for dinner." She also had something to say about a "frunkle-bed for the children," and "tobacco boxes filled with saw-dust for spittoons." The lady was thinking about the log cabin of pioneer days. Our log house will be equipped and furnished Roycroft, and this means it will be ahead-of-date and very convenient. Upon the oaken front door will be carved these words: "The gossip habit is a disease. If you have gossip germs on your person, please disinfest before entering here."

Mrs. Alice Hubbard wrote me a good letter and closed her epistle thus: "We were very much pleased with your article in the Bedford Gazette—much pleased. Miriam was radiant, and told Bob (the cat) that he had 'notice in a paper by Mr. Mann.' Here is love to you from us all, and the best there is to you."

I won't pretend that I don't care for these commendations, like so many fellows do who receive compliments from the newspapers. They pretend they don't like them, but they do. I do appreciate these kind words. "One smile for the living is worth more than a thousand tears for the dead." Prefer smiles to tears, and posies to brick-bats. But I also appreciate just criticism, and that is why I like your letter.

The Bedford Gazette was established in 1805, never changed its name or politics, and today it has a wide circulation, and although it is 102 years old, it is a wholesome, wide-awake journal. The Bedford county folks are proud of The Gazette, and seldom throw bricks at it. Few newspapers enjoy this distinction.

Like your letter best of all received, because it shows the other side, and also tells me that my faulty phraseology did not always convey to the reader the thought I wanted to impart.

Immediately after reading your letter I took your advice and purchased a copy of the March issue of The Ladies' Home Journal. As soon as I saw the picture of "the beautiful red-hatted woman" on the cover, I said that girl has a beautiful face, but in real life she would look more beautiful with a gingham sunbonnet, a Quaker hood, or a sailor hat.

At East Aurora, Miss Jean Kerr, a Roycroft girl, wears a neat felt hat without flowers or feathers, and a nicely fitting grey jacket and skirt without lace or ruffles. She has a plain face, but to me she looks beautiful. Put a big red-plumed hat on that girl, trim her dress with ruffles and furbelows, smear her face with paint, and she would look like a "scare-crow"—to men and crows. Am I wrong?

Another Roycroft girl, Mrs. Florence Arnold (a widow), wore a perfectly plain white shirt-waist with plaited bosom, a Fauntleroy collar (think that's the name), and a hanging tie. As I saw her at her work in the Roycroft Inn I thought she was one of the finest pictures of simplicity and calm content that mortal ever saw.

You may call this "gush." We young folks call it sentiment and youthful enthusiasm. Are you laughing? A man without sentiment is like food without seasoning. A woman without sentiment—there are none.

Let me tell you a little story about a girl living in your home town: Three years ago next June, at the time when you and your folks entertained me so nicely at your pleasant home: [I shall never forget that dinner cooked and served the way Mrs. Rorer would have done it.] But I started to tell you a story and not to talk about your good housekeeping. My friend Sawyer—Sturges Sawyer—at Elyria, has an old-fashioned well at his home: an old oaken bucket well. Many a drink have I taken from that "moss-covered bucket." When a boy, working in your father's printing office, as assistant-devil, I slaked my thirst at that old well. One June morning (1904) I saw a lady drinking from this old oaken bucket. Mrs. Sawyer introduced us. After that we met frequently at the well. Whenever I saw the lady there I got thirsty and went to the well to get a drink of course. "Mann-like," did you say? I admired the lady the first time I met her. After meeting her several times, I said to her: "I like your neat and simple way of dressing. You have good taste." "Do you think so," she replied. "All my lady friends say I dress too plainly—that I ought to be more stylish." We then sat down on a little bench at the kitchen door, and she told me a little story, and I will tell it to you, because it illustrates a point in view. Mrs. Sawyer can tell you the girl's name.

The young lady was a member of the Catholic Church at Elyria. She said the Knights of Columbus (a Catholic organization) from different towns in Northern Ohio were to meet at Elyria on a certain date, and they were to be fed at the church parlors. The young ladies of the church were to serve the meals. All of her lady friends began talking about what they were going to wear, and some of them had special gowns made for the event. I believe they were also going to hold a reception for the visiting young knights. The ladies expected to meet a great many gentlemen and "they wanted to look nice." My natural friend said she dressed in her usual plain and simple way, against the protests of some of her lady friends. After describing the event in detail, she threw up her hands, and in her girlish way said: "And I was the only girl who caught a beau." Then she laughed and showed nearly every tooth in her head.

A gaudy dress and a dashing air, may slightly touch some hearts, but it's modesty and simplicity that polishes the dart.

Eva, I'll admit it would not do for all people to live in log cabins: The wheels of commerce would stop. But you can live a complex life in a log cabin and the simple life in a mansion. I prefer simplicity in a log house; others prefer a frame, stone or brick house. There are people living in mansions who live a truly simple life. I believe that President Roosevelt, Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Rockefeller live more simple lives than lots of people who live in small houses. Do you?

Have often thought if I had the money, I would establish and endow a national journal that would consistently and persistently advocate, illustrate and elucidate the simple, sensible, and true way of living. Not in the way you say The Ladies' Home Journal does—that is, advocate the simple life in the editorial columns, and a complex life in the rest of the journal.

The journal would not be run for profit; that would not be the object in view. But in time it might become self-supporting. The endow-

CATARRH

To prove unquestionably, and beyond any doubt that Catarrh of the nose and throat can be cured, I am furnishing patients through drug stores, small free Trial Boxes of Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure. I do this because I am so certain, that Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure will bring actual substantial help. Nothing certainly, is so convincing as a physical proof of any article of real genuine merit. But this article must possess true merit, else the test will condemn, rather than advance it. Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure is a most whole, healing, astringent, balsam, put up in beautiful nickel capped glass jars at 50c. Such soothing agents as Oil of Eucalyptus, Thymol, Menthol, etc., are incorporated into a cream like Petroleum, imported by Dr. Shoop from Europe. If Catarrh of the nose and throat has extended to the stomach, then by all means use internally, Dr. Shoop's Bile Beans. Stomach distress, a lack of general strength, bloating, belching, biliousness, bad taste, etc., are cured by Dr. Shoop's Bile Beans. For uncomplicated catarrh only of the nose and throat nothing else, however, need be used but ment fund would place the journal upon a sound financial basis, above want, so that it need not be influenced by self-interest. It would give its readers the facts—the truth. Facts will clarify, simplify.

"ALL DEALERS"

Facts can be made fascinating, and the people want facts, but oh, how hard it is to get them. The simple facts about medicine, law, religion, hygiene, politics, government, affairs, temperance and intemperance, the art of living, and all subjects of human interest are so mixed up with selfishness, fanaticism, prejudice, superstition, sophistry, chicanery and subterfuge that it is a very difficult matter for a fellow to know when he has facts. The simple is made complex. Without facts one can not have good judgment on any subject.

It has been my ambition for years to found such a journal: To have the means to employ intelligent, unprejudiced, broad-gauge specialists to hunt and dig for facts. After facts were secured I would have them printed in a way to make them interesting, so the people would read them. Then I would make an effort to place the journal in every American home. The price would not be more than 25 cents per year.

This would require a large sum of money, and how I regret I do not have it. Certain financial losses have kept my hands and head at the grindstone, earning the money to pay my debts, debts that some legal lights have advised me not to pay, because "limitation has cut them out." Some years ago I told a lawyer it was my intention to first pay all debts that were not secured, debts that were too ancient to be collected by law—"out-lawed debts." "You are a fool," he said, "for paying debts you are not legally bound to pay." A moral obligation, to certain lawyers, is beyond their comprehension. Such laws ought to be repealed, and when a majority of the people live simple, thoughtful, honest lives, they will be torn from the statute books, and the American people will be ashamed of the men who put them there.

Give all the people simple, plain facts, and the political demagogue would be put out of business, the lawyer lawyer would be put out of business, the quack doctor would be put out of business, the religious exhorter with humbug methods would be put out of business, the sensational newspaper would be put out of business, all fake mining schemes, with "prominent" citizens for bell sheep, would be put out of business, the devilish agitators who are creating and fostering race prejudice, would be put out of business, with all other parasites and pretenders, and then honest people, poor and rich, black and white, could rejoice and sing "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

Now, please don't suspect for one moment that I am foolish enough to believe that this endowed journal could accomplish all this. Such a journal would simply start the ball to rolling, popularize facts. Other journals would adopt the plan, and in time Simplicity and Facts would take the place of Gossip and Delusion. Then all the reforms that are worthy of the name would follow as surely as night follows day. Back to the Simple Life.

When I bought the March number of The Ladies' Home Journal it was my intention to examine it from cover to cover, as per your request. Have written you the longest letter I ever wrote to a girl, and have not gotten further into the Journal than the girl with the big red hat. At some future time I may write you what I think of the contents of that special issue.

Remember me very kindly to all your folks. Best wishes.
Your friend,
GEORGE M. MANN.

EFFECT OF THE FOOD LAW

Driving Many Worthless Catarrh Medicines Out of Existence.

Many worthless remedies that have been advertised for the cure of catarrh have been driven out of existence by the Pure Food Law.

This has naturally increased the sale of reliable remedies, and those that fulfill the provisions of the law. Hyomel, for example, has a larger sale than before, and F. W. Jordan still sells it under a guarantee that it will cure catarrh or the money will be refunded.

Breathe Hyomel three or four times daily through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, and its healing air will reach the most remote parts of the nose, throat and lungs, killing all catarrhal germs and soothing and healing any irritation in the mucous membrane.

The complete Hyomel outfit costs $1.00, extra bottles, if needed, 50c, and sold by F. W. Jordan under the guarantee that it will cure or cost nothing.

EASTER AT BETHLEHEM

Quaint Services of the Moravians of Pennsylvania.

Easter is celebrated in a very quaint manner among the Moravians dwelling in the United States. On Good Friday, in the afternoon, is held a crucifixion service. This solemn feature is made more realistic by the tolling of the great bell in the belfry of the church three times at 2 o'clock, indicative of the hour at which Christ was crucified.

About 2 o'clock on Easter Sunday morning a trombone choir starts out on a tour of the town. At each street corner quaint old German chorals are played. The object is to awaken the people and to inform them that it is time to be on their way to attend the early resurrection services in the church.

The Moravian church at Bethlehem, Pa., at the time of its erection in 1803 was the largest church in America. The services are started by the trombone choir stationed in the belfry. They play several selections, and then the church services begin. These consist of reading a brief litany and songs and last half an hour. The remaining part of the service takes place in the cemetery which adjoins the church. The services are so regulated that the procession reaches the center of the graveyard just as the sun rises if the day is clear. The graveyard services are simple and similar to those held in the church.—Leslie's Weekly.

Christian Easter

We are told that neither in the New Testament, nor in the writings of the apostolic fathers do we find any trace of the celebration of Easter as a church festival. Origin urges that the Christian who dwells on the truth of Christ as our Passover, and the gift of the Holy Ghost, is every day keeping an Easter and pentecostal feast. It is doubtless true that the first Christians continued to observe the Jewish festivals as commemorative of events of which these had been the shadows, and thus the Passover made even more sacred by the thought of Christ, the true paschal lamb, the first fruits of the dead, continued to be celebrated and became the Christian Easter.

EARLY LOCAL HISTORY

John H. P. Adams, Esq., Writes of Former Days in Southern Part of County; The Early Settlers; The First House in Rainsburg; Ray's Trading Post; First Slave Landed; Killing of Chief Wills; Exploring the Country; Varieties of Apples.

Editor of Bedford Gazette:—Believing that the statement of many facts pertaining to the southern part of the county will be appreciated by your many readers, I think it proper to give you the history of the early settlers in that part of the county.

Jacob Adams located in Rainsburg in 1786; was born in Massachusetts and emigrated from there to the state of Virginia in 1775. Shortly after his arrival there he joined Washington's Rifle brigade and assumed the office of first lieutenant. He was with that gallant regiment five years when he was honorably discharged, having been wounded in the shoulder and foot. After his recovery he re-enlisted in the Seventh Virginia regiment under Col. John Smith. This regiment was known as the Invalid Regiment and was sent in 1790 to Fort Pitt, now Pittsburgh, to do garrison duty or to keep the Tories and Indians in check. He there became captain of the first company in the regiment. On July 3, 1793, he was ordered out to capture or disperse a band of Tories and Indians for one hundred and two years in succession.

Joseph Powell was a son of George Powell, who was a son of Capt. John Powell, who came into the James river, June 19, 1819, in command of a frigate. Under commission from the United Provinces he brought with him a negro named Brass, the first negro brought to the North American colonies. The question arose as to the legality of bringing a negro into the colonies and he had to wait for an order from the crown of England before he could land her in the Virginia colony. He was Burgess of Elizabeth City, 1657-8; was one of the first assembly which convened at Yorktown on the James river, October, 1666. In this assembly were passed the first laws restricting the landing of any paupers, criminals or other malefactors in the province of Virginia.

Joseph Powell married a daughter of John Perrin in the year 1765 or 6 (records destroyed by fire). Their family was Archibald, Rachel, John, Robert, William and Anna, familiar-

His "knob" was removed, his grave dug and his body laid therein. The body was removed about the year 1836 by unknown parties. The grave is still there and will be till time is no more. Any person that is skeptical as to this fact can visit the spot and see for himself as your correspondent has done.

The surviving women were found at Montreal, Canada, and brought home some six years afterward.

Perrin's second wife was Rachel McCoy. He was the father of twenty-two children and was a useful man in his day, and was loved and respected by all who knew him. He died at a ripe old age of 80 years and was laid to rest on his own farm.

Shawnee Graves

There are on this land a number of Indian graves that the hand of man has not defiled. Mrs. Davis and husband and child were all buried on the Perrin farm, known as the Shawnee graveyard. Mrs. Vogan was the great grandmother of the Elders and Boors of Cumberland Valley. She and her husband are buried at the Shawnee graveyard. Mrs. Clark was the grandmother of John H. Clark, once owner of the steam flouring mills at Mann's Choice, who died near Ellerslie a few years ago in his 93rd year. Mrs. Tomblason was the great grandmother of the present Mayor of Cumberland, Md.

The first actual settlers that came into the Town Creek Valley as far as there is any record arrived in the year 1728. John Spergen, Thomas Prather, Richard James, Robert Fleehart, George Painter, Herodius Blue, Philip Brandwater, Ignatius Rock, John Still, Achior Worley, Michael Huff, Joseph Johnson, George Tunis. Spergen built the first mill on Town creek in the year 1730. He died and was buried on the property now belonging to the heirs of John E. Roberts; Prather was drowned and buried at the same place; James was the progenitor of the numerous James families that inhabited the end of the county and have proved to be good citizens. The head of the family was buried at the Shawnee burial ground, no date. Fleehart was drowned and buried on the property now owned by David Roland, June —; Painter was drowned and buried on the same place; Blue drowned in a deep hole in Town creek that still bears his name; grave not known. Brandwater died and was buried on the Roland farm in 1768, age not known; Rock was drawn to thin ice by a beaver in his trap; he broke through and drowned and was buried on the same place. Still married an Indian woman and died in 1770; buried in the same burial ground as the others, also three children.

His wife followed the fortunes of her race toward the setting sun. He had built a mill on Big Sweet Root creek which he operated up to his death. Worley bought of the Indians what was known as the Indian Orchard. He also built a sawmill on Big Sweet Root that he operated. He went back to Virginia and brought a wife with him. Many of his descendants are yet living. He was buried on his own place in 1775. Huff was a trapper and a hunter; he also brought a wife from Virginia and had two sons and a daughter. His grave is not positively known but is supposed to be on the property now owned by your scribe. Joseph Johnson died and was buried at Shawnee graveyard. Engraved on his tombstone is "1731." This place was then in possession of the Indians. Tunis was an Indian trader. No record of his death exists.

The first white men that there is any account of coming in this part of the country was in 1640. Thomas Powell, who, as captain of the Seafoam, came into the James river in the year 1620. He was a brother of John Powell. He fitted out an expedition to explore the western part of Virginia in 1625. His report was made to the ancestors of Martin L. Cressap: "I have the pleasure of reporting to your highness that after going many days a little northwest through the wilderness we came to a high plateau of land which abounds in all kinds of game. We there camped and killed and ate our fill; when well rested, we continued about the same direction, when we came upon some water that drained northward; we followed it and it got bigger, when to our great chagrin we heard thunder noise. We were then close to a great mountain when all of a sudden it disappeared and from all of its noise I think it fell through the earth. I know not what to name is unless "Lost Water," as it can never again get on top of ye earth, [this is now known as Lost River]; we then went towards the setting sun for two days when we came to other waters going toward the north star. We continued along its bank till it got much larger. We found it not so good traveling, and crossed to the other side. In doing these things we lost one of our men, George South, which I much regret. We got him and of course buried him in his clothes near a big pine tree, that we marked. [This tree is said to be near the residence of a Mr. Blue.] We came on down this water two days' travel when we came to a large water. By making log rafts all got over safe, where we rested and fished two days. We took our course towards the north star one day's journey and came to another water; though it came from the north star, we followed it three days' travel; we came to where there were three waters came together, one was near the star. This water had a sweetish taste; was full of the most beautifully speckled fish we have ever saw. There were lots of Indians here; they showed us all the friendship they could; we continued up this till we came to high ground; we went beyond that where the water runs toward the north star, then we turned and came back to the big water we had crossed. We followed it for many days, then we came to a great water which seemed to come from the high sun; we followed it till we came to water going towards the high noon; we followed it; we came to our own big water where we followed our trail home. I assign myself your humble servant.

"Captain Thomas Powell."

"October, 25th day, 1625."

This report was copied verbatim from the original in the hands of Martin L. Cressap of Skipton Mills, Md. There is no doubt that this report covers the waters of Town creek. This stream is formed from three other streams that bear the name of Big Sweet Root, Elk Creek which flows through the Huff property, and Brushy Fork, which heads in Monroe township. They all form a junction a short distance south of the village of Chaneyville, in Southampton township.

Simon Howsare in 1825-6 erected a grist mill and still house on the waters of Sweet Root and the locality at that day was known as Watertown. This mill was operated till 1852, when a new one was erected by B. O'Neal.

Chaneyville proper was built by Thomas Chaney, Jr., in 1838-9 and was occupied by him as a hotel till the spring of 1844. From that time to the present day it has been kept by the following landlords: Benjamin Kegg, David Walters, Asbury Pardew, Leopold Carnell, John D. Pardew, James Carnell, Jacob C. Mills, Barnard O'Neal, Henry C. Lashley, William Bartholow, James L. Arons, Ezekiah Tewell, John Redinger, Joseph B. Howsare and Joshua Howsare, the present landlord and owner. Your scribe saw the first tree cut and hewed that went into the old hotel 68 years ago. Chaneyville is quite a hustling little village; has two stores, hotel, two churches—Methodist and German Reformed, sawmill, planing mill, blacksmith and repair shops, cabinet shop and undertaker, doctor, a state fire warden, and a fine two-room school building.

The first school building was erected in 1766 and first school was taught by a man named Vitchey. This house was on a stream of water known as Tune's Run, now known as Gruber's creek, about one mile west of the village. The next house built was near Shawnee Gap, or Point Pleasant, in 1806. The first teacher was Richard Moode, who will be spoken of further on.

George Powell was a brother of John Powell, who had his trading post on Little Sweet Root branch 1747, which rises in the lock of the mountain between Martin's Hill and Tussey's mountain and flows east through the gap of the mountain and empties in Big Sweet Root near Point Pleasant. It is this gap of the mountain in which George Powell discovered the saltpetre cave. Here Huff gathered his saltpetre for Jacob Rowland to make powder for the use of the Continental army during the war of 1775-80.

The Indian Orchard was purchased from the Indians by Achior Worley and remained in his and his descendants' till within the last few years. It is now owned by Ezekiah Walters. From this apple orchard came several varieties of fruit that are yet in this section of the county. There are three varieties of apples in this county, and in fact throughout the fruitgrowing parts of the United States that have existed for near three hundred years. I will give the fruit growers the proper names, whence they came and by whom. One is called the Ewalt, another the Black apple or James River apple, the third is known as the Shafer or Tophocking or Forest Apple. Those apples were brought by Thomas Powell from Scotland in 1620 and planted at Elizabeth City, Elizabeth county, on the James river, Virginia, and by his two grandsons were brought to Bedford, now Fulton county, Pa., and there propagated by Isaac and Samuel Powell, in 1752 in Bethel township. There are many of their descendants living there. The proper name of the Ewalt is Scotch Pippin. The Black or James River apple's proper name is Spanish Beauty; that of the Shafer or Tophocking or Forest apple is Highlander.

Richard Moode, in 1812, was the pioneer in fruit raising in Bedford county. He grafted a great many apples through this section of the county. In 1814 he married Mary, daughter of Jacob Adams, Sr. and moved to Coshocton county, Ohio, near where the town of West Bedford now stands, in 1813. He there started a fruit nursery called Forest Nursery, where for many years he made fruit-raising a specialty. It was by him advertised and sold as the Forest apple. The other two varieties were sold under their original names. In 1840 a man by the name of Top Weire on the Hocking river, Ohio, had a fruit nursery called the Tophocking Nursery; he advertised the same apple under the name of Hocking Pippin, Ohio Black apple (Spanish Beauty), Moode apple, (Highland). In 1848 a son of Mr. Weire of the Hocking Nursery came through Bedford county and grafted the same apples under the name given by his father at his nursery. When they began to bear they proved to be the same apples. In 1850 Patrick Donahoe of Bean's Cove entered the fruit business. He went to Shafer's in Friend's Cove (Mr. Shafer was an uncle of Moode's wife) and got the Highlander which he propagated and sold as the Shafer apple. He also went to Ewalt's and got the Scotch Pippin which he disposed of as the Ewalt apples. He also went to Felton's on Big Brush creek and got the Spanish Beauty which he disposed of as the James River apple, not knowing they were the same fruit till they began to bear when he ceased selling under the erroneous names and sold them under their old and true names. I will here say that there is a tree bearing fruit on the old Amos farm that was grafted by Richard Moode in 1812 for Benjamin Amos, now the property of John O'Neal. I should not have taken up so much space were it not that it may be a benefit to those who contemplate planting orchards.

A POOR ORGAN

Dam(s) the bile. That's what your liver does if it's torpid. Then the bile overflows into the blood—poisons your system, causing sick-headache, biliousness, sallow skin, coated tongue, sick stomach, dizziness, fainting spells, etc. Ramon's treatment of Liver Pills and Tonic Pellets strengthens the liver and makes it do its own work. Prevents and cures these troubles. It aids—doesn't force. Entire treatment 25c.—J. R. Irvine & Co.

J. H. P. ADAMS

that was annoying the loyal citizens near the fort. Having captured a large number of Tories and dispersed their Indian allies, the fort was not afterward annoyed. In May, 1794, the regiment was ordered to return to Virginia, by way of Port Bedford and Oldtown, Md., where they crossed the Potomac river to Winchester, Va., where the regiment was discharged.

Two years later he married Miss Loretta Dustimer, daughter of John Dustimer of Loudon county, Va., and took up his line of march northwest as he had fallen in love with the southern part of Bedford county, known as Friend's Cove, where, with his wife, he stopped, now the village of Rainsburg. At that time there was but one citizen, Conrad Rain, who lived in a round log building which was removed by Samuel Williams, who replaced it with a frame house in 1854. Adams built the first hewed-log house that was built in that village, in which he made his home until October, 1805. While living there the following children were born: Jacob, June, 1790; Elizabeth, 1793; Mary, 1796; Margaret, 1798; Sarah, January 1, 1800; George, January 27, 1802; William, August 25, 1805. This house was burned at the time the Rainsburg tannery was destroyed.

After his removal to Shawnee Gap, now Point Pleasant, Southampton township, Ellen was born June 27, 1807; Henry, April 30, 1811; John, January 30, 1813. This property he purchased of William Williams. He first erected a sawmill and operated it for some fourteen years; he then built a two-run grist mill that manufactured its first grain into flour January 24, 1820. This he successfully operated until he was called beyond the great river, which occurred August 7, 1853, at 11 a. m.; aged 102 years, seven months and 11 days.

He was appointed Justice of the Peace in 1800 and served as such until 1836. Thus ended the useful life of the leading man of his day in the southern part of the county.

William Adams married Anna Powell August 26, 1826. She was a daughter of Joseph Powell. They had born to them the following children: Sarah Ann, September 12, 1827; Ellen Nora, November 9, 1829; Charles Powell, March 3, 1837; J. H. P., October 19, 1832; Rachel Jane, September 20, 1838; Joseph W., December 13, 1848; Lee Grand Barington, February 28, 1850.

He succeeded his father as Justice of the Peace, being elected in 1836 for Southampton township. He held the office till 1886, making a term of 50 years. He resided on the old homestead from 1832 till his death, which occurred November 16, 1893, aged 83 years, two months and 22 days. In politics he was a Democrat, having cast his first vote for Andrew Jackson.

J. H. P. Adams succeeded his father as Justice of the Peace, being elected in 1886 and holding the office up to 1902. The three Adamses filled the office of Justice of the Peace

The people are still waiting for the Inquirer to come out and tell whence the information about the granting of that "new trial" when it was not a matter of record. Can it be that the "argus eye" of the Inquirer's reporter was able to penetrate the cranial recess and discern the thoughts of the mind of the Court? Or was a paper secluded in the receptacle on the side of an overcoat not hidden from the Inquirer's gaze?

LOCAL OPTION KILLED

The following dispatch from Harrisburg to many city papers tells a story that goes back into political history:

Harrisburg, March 25.—Local option was killed in the House tonight. Mr. Craven's resolution to place his bill on the calendar was defeated by a vote of 96 to 88. It required 104 affirmative votes. The Committee on Law and Order had reported the bill with a negative recommendation.

In the recent campaign it was inexplicable to see the Prohibitionists, headed by Rev. Dr. Silas C. Swallow, lined up for Stuart in one column and the liquor interests in line of march in a parallel column—both for Stuart—truly "Politics makes strange bedfellows."

But why this strange combination working for the same end, the election of Stuart and a Republican state legislature? The Prohibitionists had certain promises "in black and white" in the platform and they had additional promises from the stump and from the machine organs, and they believed and came out and worked—for Stuart and the gang. But there was another force to be reckoned with—the liquor element. They too had promises but they were not written within a platform nor were they repeated from the stump nor yet did the gang organs make them public, yet they counted for much—in the election.

Verily, the promises which were made openly and which were written in the platform and circulated and published have come to naught; but the promise which was made in secret has been kept; the former, perhaps, was a "political promise" while the latter was a "personal pledge." Both could not be broken and the one which was made in secret has been kept. In short the Prohibitionists have been duped.

THE BARONS' HANDS

A few days ago the announcement was made that John Ellmore, the cobbler-inventor, of Altoona had discovered a secret process by which more heat can be gotten from coal ashes mixed with a little coal than can be gotten from a like quantity of coal. It was heralded abroad that the value of the process had been demonstrated in the presence of witnesses, that it would revolutionize heating and that it is the most beneficial discovery of the age in that it would make cheerful the hovel of the wretched—that it would place the price of fuel so low that many poor people, whose existence is made miserable by the frigid weather, might enjoy the luxury of a cheerful fire.

But the successful demonstration of the usefulness of the compound has, according to newspaper reports, excited large mine owners and operators. They cannot stand idly by and see an inexpensive fluid sprinkled on ashes and a small amount of coal produce the heat that now requires tons of the product of their mines, and they, according to reports, offer him a large fortune to destroy his secret or sell it outright. Ellmore still sits at his bench and cobbles, the while conscious that his dreams of fortune have been realized. In a short time he will determine whether he will sell to the coal barons or to Altoona capitalists who would market the compound.

The bait of the barons is most probably more alluring than the offer of those who would market a compound that would prove a blessing to mankind, and there is no law to prevent the bartering of a secret; but if the secret process is all that is claimed for it and the coal barons succeed in suppressing it, it will be an exchange of happy hours and comfortable homes for pieces of silver; the selling of a blessing to humanity for the ducats of those self-appointed "guardians" who operate by Divine right. Such is the state of society, but will it long continue?

THAT CAPITOL GRAFT

The farmer who lays aside his rake or his scythe or his hoe and walks to the fence and looks into the arena where is going on the investigation of the deeds of the Capitol Commission, sees a sight that makes him shrink. The mechanic who lays aside the implements with which he earns for himself and family an honest living and enough additional to pay his taxes, picks up a daily paper and reads the testimony of those being interrogated by the investigators of the capitol graft, is horrified. The business and professional man who reads authentic reports of the gigantic sums that were filched from the treasury of Pennsylvania in connection with the erection of the new capitol at Harrisburg by political plotters and grafters naturally ask "Whither are we drifting?"

There was a time—before the election—when honest men accepted the word of those high in authority that there was nothing crooked about the work done on the new capitol and the prices charged for the same; but all is changed now; the investigation is revealing facts.

An imbecile old Governor,—a piece of clay in the hands of politicians,—whose inglorious administration is now a stain upon the state's escutcheon, is, in large measure responsible for the outrageous course, for it was he who put the "joker" in by which all bids for parts of the work were rejected, though the advertisement printed in favored papers of the state allowed bids to be made on part of the work. Sanderson seems to have been the only one who bid on the whole furnishings, and since this was a necessary condition he got the job—and the state has paid the bills.

When the charges of fraud were first made we were told that the structure was magnificent and worth the money, then Governor Pennypacker arranged a series of excursions from all parts of the state so that taxpayers might, at reduced rates, journey to Harrisburg and view the grandeur of the structure of which, indeed "the half had not been told." As defects, and shams, and substitutions, and methods of measuring were pointed out, it was admitted that there possibly was "extravagance" and "injurious expenditure" but the idea of fraud was hooted at.

Then came upon the stage Attorney General Carson to make his little speech. Because of his legal knowledge and official position he was listened to with interest as he declared that if there was fraud it could not be found out, and even if found out no one could be punished and no money recovered, which, being interpreted, means, "It looks like loot but we can't recover the money so make light of it and let it die out."

As the evidence became stronger and stronger and established fraud and graft it was laid at the door of the contractor and the "gang" skirts were declared to contain no tinsel ruffles. Such is the history of the most flagrant graft ever brought to light, but the end is not yet; the evidence now being taken shows collusion and fraud, rank, rascal, rascal. Pedro G. Salom, brother-in-law of Contractor Sanderson, took the stand on Wednesday and swore that the Pennsylvania Bronze Co. furnished the fake Baccarat cut glass for $29,000, while Sanderson received $138,000 for it, hence he filched $109,000. The Pennsylvania Bronze Co. received for bronze work and glass $550,000, while Sanderson received the enormous sum of $2,187,122.96, a profit of $1,537,122.96. But worse than all John H. Sanderson, the contractor, organized the Pennsylvania

Bronze Co., of which his brother-in-law was treasurer, for the sole purpose of furnishing the bronze work and the substitute which was sold as Baccarat glass. It will be interesting to learn whether and to what extent Sanderson had to divide. It may come out that many individuals profited by his being the only bidder whose bid met the demands of the Governor's "joker."

"HOMELESS 26" WITHOUT FUNDS

Members of the Order Sued by Wife of National Secretary.

The "Homeless 26," of which Hon. S. Marshall Williams, who once represented this county in the state House of Representatives, has been National Secretary, is in financial trouble. Hundreds of members of the practically defunct organization have been sued by Mrs. Ora L. Williams, wife of the National Secretary, to recover money advanced by her husband to tide the organization over a financial crisis. Mrs. Williams holds a note for $700 given by the officers which covers the claim. The suits are brought against individual members and many summons have been served.

ANTHONY COMSTOCK

His Work and Influence—Yellow Journals—The Cost of Grand Opera.

New York, March 26.—The arrest of eleven burglars whose ages varied between eight and fifteen years has suddenly awakened our community to the startling fact that more than one-half of the robberies and assaults on our criminal courts are the work of comparatively boys, between the ages of twelve and eighteen years. Many suppose that this is the result of their criminal environment, but it is nothing of the sort; the eleven young robbers that the police picked up last week, red-handed,—with the plunder on their persons, were every one of them members of exceptionally respectable families,—and the leader was a hardened ruffian, aged fifteen, who had on his person, ready for instant use if detected in his thievery, a black-jack of home manufacture, that with a single blow would have cracked the skull of a rhinoceros. This desperate villain was a model scholar, always at the head of his class, who had won dozens of diplomas and silver medals for proficient scholarship and excellent deportment, and would have graduated next week. When he was arraigned before the Magistrate his sisters brought his diplomas and medals as evidence of his good character, but the black-jack and a pocketful of plunder outweighed them all, so he will be sent to Ward's Island to remain there till he is twenty-one.

You may ask, what has brought about this fearful condition among our boys? The answer is simple; this city and the entire country is flooded with that class of "yellow literature" which exalts the thief and the murderer and makes him appear as a hero and a martyr, and paints the honest man who suffers through him as a coward. We have a man in our city who has been in the government's service nearly forty years; his life has been devoted to hunting down the criminals who have been debauching our youth; hundreds of tons of this vile stuff he has seized and destroyed, but the trade is so profitable that the loss is soon replaced and the corruption of our boys still goes on.

During the forty years that Anthony Comstock has been engaged in his perilous service he has carried his life in his hand but he has never faltered; time and again he has been attacked by the dangerous tradesmen whose filthy property he was denigrating. He bears on his face a disfiguring scar which he will carry to his grave and which is an ensign of his honorable service. In the performance of his allotted life-work he has frequently secured nothing but insults from the court and the police. His life has been one long deadly peril, but he performs his duty bravely and nobly, and so he will continue to do to the end.

When the day shall come, as come it surely will, when he passes away peacefully in his own home surrounded by loving friends, or goes down to death in the van of the battle, when they lay his honored ashes to rest in Greenwood cemetery, that magnificent necropolis where rests the sacred dust of our country's most honored dead, in that splendid convocation of granite, marble and bronze, there will be no shrine more worthy of reverence and honor than that of Anthony Comstock.

Our opera season is ended, and now is a good time to figure on the profit and loss. The cost of Grand Opera at the Metropolitan in the past year has been, in round numbers, $2,000,000 and now that all the bills are paid the trial-balance on the ledger shows a deficit of $70,000.

Mr. Conrad has conducted the Grand Opera at that house for the last two seasons, and as far as quality is concerned nothing could be more satisfactory, but the cost has been fearful. The wealthy subscribers gave him to understand that they wanted the best that the market afforded, and he gave it to them notwithstanding the deficit of $70,000 the ledger shows a cash receipt of $55,000 over the previous year; Mr. Conrad seems to have given his singers whatever they demanded; they received no such compensation for their services in any other country as they did in the United States, they bring nothing into the country but their voices and they depart leaving nothing but a memory behind. They are the most exacting class with which the public has to deal; they absorb everything while here and they leave nothing behind when they go, every dollar goes to Europe and to just that extent the wealth of our country is depleted. Do not understand from what I have said that I am averse to Grand Opera, for I love good music and believe the Nation is better that cultivates and encourages it; my dislike is the enormous prices paid to foreign singers who grasp everything and yield nothing.

The man who builds an opera house like that of Oscar Hammerstein gives something that we can see and enjoy in years to come; the money that he makes he spends here. Let our rich people, who now support in reckless extravagance the present grand opera, encourage home teachers and we will soon see the best teachers in Europe flocking to the United States, and it would not be long before Europe would be sending to us for prima donnas, contraltos, tenors, baritones and basses to supply the places of those who are now sailing away from us; we could then have a Grand Opera for the million as well as the millionaire.

There are several fine vocal teachers in the city now and most American prima donnas that Paris has seen and heard received their vocal training in New York. Let me here mention, for the benefit of our British, German and Italian cousins, that the lover of music is not a mere feature in our American life. Fifty and a hundred years ago there was not a village or a hamlet that boasted a dozen houses, blacksmith shop, a postoffice and a hotel, but that it had a singing-school, around which cling some of the brightest and dearest memories of the past. It was there that the smart young fellows met their best girls, and there the girls laid out the plans of their future lives, happily consummated later on. Who can ever forget those delightful sleigh-rides through the sharp, crisp, frosty winter nights as we dashed over the snowy road, smooth as a sheet of glass, the happy company packed in like sardines in a box and the sleigh never so full but there was room for one more. Happy nights those! Yes, and bright now amid the golden memories of the past.

We gathered our inspiration to sing from "The Boston Academy" and "Carmina Sacra." It is true we knew nothing of Verdi, Wagner, of vaudeville, or of grand opera with its $3,000 a night and $15 for a parquet seat in baldheaded row; but we did know something of Handel and Haydn, of Mozart and Beethoven, and if, in hours of inspiration, we desired to stir the hearts of the sinners present with something less classic but more effective, we gave them "Ninety and Nine" and made the welkin ring with the soul-stirring strains of "Hold the Port." These memories are an oasis in the desert sands of life; they are golden dreams, fadeless and beautiful, and all that remain to me of life—unseen, and intangible to others but to me solid facts that uphold the pillars of eternity, so that with humble spirit I can bide my time, can watch and wait, "If it be not now, it will come—the readiness is all—As no man taketh out of the world more than he bringeth into it; so let it be. There is a special Providence, even in a sparrow's fall."

A Welcome Home

About fifty friends and neighbors assembled at the home of A. C. Richards, two and one-half miles southwest of New Paris, Saturday evening, March 23, and tendered them a surprise, welcoming them home from California, Pa., where Mr. Richards and family spent the winter.

On their arrival they were much surprised to find so many of their good neighbors and friends present preparing a sumptuous supper. The table was laden with dainty and ample refreshments, to which all did justice. The evening was spent very pleasantly with music and singing by the young people, which was followed by several short addresses.

Those present were D. E. Bowser and family, Mrs. Noah Thomas and sons, J. E. Emrick and family, S. D. Lape and family, G. M. McMillen and family, Joseph Custer and family, J. L. Haines and family, C. M. Davis and family, G. M. Hoover and family, C. P. Blackburn and family, Mrs. Lucinda Lape, Mrs. Della Glacken and Misses Saloma Robinson, Rhoda Lape, Charity Blackburn and Alice Lingenfelter. All returned home at a late hour, reporting a good time and glad to see their old neighbors back to Bedford county once more.

A Guest.

Farmers and Fruit Growers

I shall hold a few spraying demonstrations again this spring and it is hoped that the people will turn out and see how to overcome the San Jose and other scale insects.

If the lime and sulphur wash is properly made it is the best general wash known, but if not it is of little use, especially against the San Jose scale. Come and see how the wash is made and applied, how to detect the San Jose scale on the trees and the method of fighting them. Do not miss this opportunity given for your benefit—turn out without fail.

MAKES ASHES BURN

Altoona Cobbler's Discovery May Revolutionize Heating.

John Ellmore, an Altoona-cobbler, has demonstrated that he has discovered a process by which coal ashes may be turned to account. Before a number of witnesses he demonstrated that a quantity of ashes mixed with a little bituminous coal and sprinkled with his solution produces more heat than coal alone. The solution, though a secret, is inexpensive and would be a god-send to many poor people who are not now able to buy the coal necessary to keep them warm.

Paint Buying Made Safe

White Lead and Linseed Oil need no argument, no advertising to maintain themselves as the best and most economical paint yet known to man. The difficulty has been for the buyer to be always sure of the purity of the white lead and oil.

We have registered the trade mark of the Dutch Boy painter to be the final proof of quality, genuineness and purity to paint buyers everywhere. This trade mark appears on every keg of

PHYSICIANS DISAGREE

Different Opinions on Cooper's Remarkable Success Held by Cincinnati Medical Men.

Cincinnati, O., March 28.—The astonishing sale of Cooper's preparations in this city has now reached such immense figures that the medical fraternity at large have become forced into open discussion of the man and his preparations.

The physicians as a whole seem to be divided with regard to the young man's success in Cincinnati—some being willing to credit him for what he has accomplished, while others assert that the interest he has aroused is but a passing fad which cannot last, and which will die out as quickly as it has sprung up.

The opinion of these two factions is very well voiced in the statements made recently by two of a number of physicians who were interviewed on the subject.

Dr. J. E. Carrass when questioned about the matter said: "I have not been a believer in proprietary preparations heretofore nor can I say that I believe in them at present. But I must admit that some of the facts recently brought to my notice concerning this man Cooper have gone far towards removing the prejudice I had formed against him when the unheard of demand for the preparations first sprang up in this city. Numbers of my patients whom I have treated for chronic liver, kidney and stomach troubles have met me after taking Cooper's remedy and have stated positively that he has accomplished wonderful results for them. I notice particularly in cases of stomach trouble that the man has relieved several cases of years' standing that proved very obstinate in treatment."

"I am the last man on earth to stand in the way of anything that may prove for the public good simply through professional prejudice, and I am inclined to give Cooper and his preparations credit as deserving to some extent the popular demonstration that has been accorded them in this city."

Another well known physician who was taken to the opposite view of the "Cooper-man," as he called it, which now has this city in its grip. He said: "I can only liken the present state of affairs to a certain kind of hallucination. For want of a better name I might call it 'Coopermania.' The people of Cincinnati seem to be firm in the belief that this man Cooper has health coked up in a bottle."

"Some of them imagine that he has completely cured them of various ills judging from their statements. It is beyond me to say why the city has gone crazy over the man. It may be safely put down, I think, to one of the passing fads that so often attack the American public."

"Sooner or later the people are bound to regain their senses and will then realize the reputable physician is the one to whom their health had best be entrusted."

In the meantime Cooper meets several thousand people daily, and only smiles when statements of the above character are quoted to him. His charitable work still continues to be very extensive.

LITERATURE

In this column will be published weekly one or more selections of poetry or prose, selected from many sources and from best authors.

BE TRUE TO YOURSELF

When comrades invite you to break away

From the duties to which you are bound,

And to join with them in their idle play,

To whirl in their giddy round;

Reflect a moment before you take

A course you may sadly rue,

And for your own, and a dear one's sake,

Be true to yourself—be true.

There'll come a time—for it comes to all—

When Satan, with purpose strong,

Will knock at the door of your heart,

And call

On you to defend the wrong;

And though he endeavors to blind your eyes,

Your doubts and fears to subdue,

Stand up for the right, and, without disguise,

Be true to yourself—be true.

Be true to yourself each hour of the day,

So honestly, fearlessly true,

That neither a friend nor a foe may say

That he was deceived in you.

Let honor be set in the highest place,

Secure from the reach of self,

And in every case, by the act of grace,

Be true—oh, be true to yourself.

Oh, would that a maxim as wise as this

Would reach to the inmost heart

Of those who a nobler calling miss

By acting a foolish part!

For whatever the post you may have to fill,

Whatever the task you pursue,

The prize is yours, if you only will

Be true to yourself—be true.

THE MODEL WIFE

There's just one thing a man can have,

In all this world of woe and strife,

That makes the business not too bad,

And that one thing's an easy wife.

Dost fancy that I loved my girl?

For rosy cheeks or raven hair?

She holds my heart because she laughs—

Because she laughs and doesn't care.

I put my boots just where it suits,

And find them where I put them,

Too;

That is a thing, you must allow,

A chap can very seldom do.

I leave my papers on my desk;

She never dusts them in a heap,

Or takes to light the kitchen stove

The very one I want to keep.

On winter nights my cozy dame

Will warm her toes before the fire;

She never scolds about the lamp,

Or wants the wick a trifle higher.

On Sunday she is not so fine

But what her ruffles I can hug;

I light my pipe just where I please,

And spill the ashes on the rug.

The bed is never filled with "shams"—

A thing some women vilely plan

To worry servants half to death,

And spoil the temper of a man.

She lets me sleep to any hour,

Nor raises any horrid din,

If I just happen now and then,

To be quite late when I come in.

I tell you, Jack, if you would wed,

Just get a girl who lets things run;

She'll keep her temper like a lamb,

And help you on to lots of fun.

Don't look for money, style or show,

Or blushing beauty, ripe and rare;

Just take the one who laughs at fate—

Who laughs and shows she doesn't care.

You think, perhaps, our household ways

Are just, perchance, a little mixed;

Oh, when they get so horrid bad,

We stir about and get things fixed.

What compensation has a man

Who earns his bread by sweat of brow,

If home is made a battle-ground,

And life one long, eternal row!

Old Easter Beliefs

An old belief which prevailed over almost the whole continent of Europe, in Catholic countries at least, was the silencing of the bells from Good Friday until Easter. No bells were rung during the three days, except for tolling, the reason being that all the bells were away, at Rome, learning a message for Easter.

The "Easter Bunny" is said to have been a bird at one time, which drew the chariot of the goddess of Spring; and was turned into a hare. Every year, as the anniversary of her coming rolls around, the hare remembers and, in remembrance of the original bird nature, lays the eggs as an offering to Spring, and to Youth, which she symbolizes.

It was considered bad luck not to wear something new on Easter Day, as the rhyme from "Poor Richard's Almanack" bears witness: "On Easter see your clothes be new, Or else be sure you it will rue."

The Keystone of the Arch of Faith

The resurrection of Christ is the most signal and splendid evidence of His divinity. It is the keystone of the arch of faith, as it is the most brilliant luminary in the constellation of Christian festivals. A certain religious enthusiast named Leberaux once submitted to Talleyrand a project he entertained of founding a new religion and asked the French statesman's views as to the feasibility of the undertaking. "You will certainly succeed," replied Talleyrand, "and your name will go down with glory to posterity if you fulfil the conditions which I propose." "And what are they?" eagerly inquired the visitor. "You must first suffer, be scourged and crucified and then rise on the third day. Do this, and your success is assured."—Cardinal Gibbons.

Rheumatic sufferers can have a free sample of Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy with book on Rheumatism by simply writing Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. This book will explain how Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy successfully drives Rheumatism out of the blood. Sold by all dealers.

Easter Blossoms

In the awful dawn of Being, when His world lay grim,

God looked forth upon His angels, splendid around Him;

Said He then unto the whitest, rapturous to see,

"Go you down and make yon planet beautiful for me."

Humbly passed the gentle vision all the black world over,

And where'er His angel journeyed it was black no more,

For the flowers sprang in glory where the fair feet trod,

Of white Innocence, the angel dearest to our God.

TORTURING PAIN.

Half This Man's Sufferings Would Have Killed Many a Person, But Doan's Cured Him.

Thousands of grateful people are telling every day how Doan's Kidney Pills cured them of distressing and dangerous kidney and bladder troubles.

Yet other thousands are suffering every day from these same ills. Why? They are either very negligent or very skeptical. Neglect of kidney disorders leads to dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease and other fatal diseases.

Sincere, honest testimony like the following should convince every skeptic.

A. C. Sprague, stock dealer, of Normal, Ill., writes: "For two whole years I was doing nothing but buying medicines to cure my kidneys. I do not think that any man ever suffered as I did and lived. The pain in my back was so bad that I could not sleep at night. I could not ride a horse and sometimes was unable even to ride in a car. My condition was critical when I sent for Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and they cured me. Now I can go anywhere and do as much as anybody. I sleep well and feel no discomfort at all."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Sprague will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

Egg Rolling at the White House

The egg rolling of Easter Monday at the White House is the most interesting of American Easter practices. The fete is held on the White House grounds, as is well known. Thousands of children are admitted to the broad, green, sloping lawn to indulge in competitive egg rolling, egg knocking and other games, a scene unrivaled in picturesque and happy interest. This Easter Monday celebration has been emulated in other places in America. In Atlanta, Ga., recently, at their own expense, the park commissioners procured 10,000 eggs, had them prettily decorated and hid them in one of the city parks, concealing them just sufficiently to give zest to a hunt, to which all the children in the city were invited.

The soothing spray of Ely's Liquid Cream Balm, used in an atomizer, is an unspeakable relief to sufferers from Catarrh. Some of them describe it as a Godsend, and no wonder. The thick, foul discharge is dislodged and the patient breathes freely, perhaps for the first time in weeks. Liquid Cream Balm contains all the healing, purifying elements of the solid form, and it never fails to cure. Sold by all druggists for 75c., including spraying tube, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

MAMMOTH CAVE

Great Natural Curiosity Visited by a Gazette Correspondent.

Mammoth Cave, Ky., March 17, 1907. They tell me that of all the tricks most common among New York policemen, the Pa-tricks are the most common. So I suppose it is so today. Oh! what a lovely day this is. The robins are nesting, the hens are cackling and the writer is blue as an indigo bag, but that shall not deter him from writing a line about this, the world's greatest natural wonder.

Mammoth Cave is near the main line of the Louisville and Nashville railroad in the Bluegrass state. It is about one hundred miles from Louisville. There is a branch railroad direct to the cave from Glasgow Junction on the L. & N. R. R. In this country they salivate you to the tune of five cents a mile railroad fare to some places and as much as ten and twelve in others. The round trip from Glasgow Junction to Mammoth Cave and return is two dollars. However, a trip to this great and world-renowned cave means more than simply seeing it. It affords a day of great enjoyment of many kinds. Visitors are constantly writing to their friends on the beautiful souvenir post cards showing many different pictures of the beauties of the cave.

This cave is a great world of itself under the ground, that is it would be with mountains, ravines, dells and everything else, save a few Pigeon hills. The temperature is always 54 degrees. It has a cellar, first, second, third and fourth stories, and over two hundred streets and avenues, (these do not include the alleys). About one hundred and fifty miles have been explored. Darkness, yes, blackness and perfect stillness reign here supreme.

The altitude of Mammoth Cave is nine hundred feet, or two hundred and fifty feet higher than the court house payment in Bedford. The Echo river in the cave has boats on it and one can paddle for over half a mile over its clear waters. To know that the water is clear one must dip up some and hold before a light or else poke his fingers in his eyes, thereby making stars to light up this river. The roof over this wonderful river is solid limestone. The echoes are different from any others and 'tis said that nowhere else on earth, or in it, can such tone, coming back to one with ever-diminishing volume as it rolls down along the unknown halls and reverberates from the secret chamber walls, be heard.

One coming here first wants to hire a cave suit for fifteen or twenty-five cents and then join a party. There are two routes to go—the long route costs you two dollars and the short route one dollar. There is a good hotel here, kept open all the year, rate two per day. They claim to kill all their own meats, raise their own poultry and most of their garden truck. The water is limestone but it is clear and cold. Last year I wrote you about Horse Cave, Ky., which is not in it with Mammoth Cave. The fact is this whole country seems to be a vast cave with different entrances or egresses. We have Horse Cave, Cave City and this Mammoth Cave, all close together.

I have had glorious weather down this way and while you were shoveling snow last Sunday I was fighting flies. Why, I had a party tell me today that I was getting tanned. I recently visited Cookeville, Tenn., where the Maxwell Bros. are the busiest men of the town. They have a large mill where they make nothing but columns for porches, all sizes are turned out by them. Also a handle factory, where they make all kinds of handles from the best hickory wood. While there I saw an order from Bethlehem, Pa., for fifteen carloads of handles to be shipped by April 15. They also operate at Nashville, Tenn., a large spoke factory and have two large wholesale grocery houses—one in Cookeville and one in Livingston, Tenn. At these stores merchants within a radius of seventy-five miles get their supplies. Fort Bedford Peanuts and Lucky Kisses are very popular with the trade supplied by the Maxwell Bros. One of these brothers, who manages all this business and does all the buying, is six feet tall, as thin as a match and at all times, save when eating or sleeping, may be seen with

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths. There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mud and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

The News—No. Pure Drug Cough Cure Laws would be needed, if all Cough Cures were like Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure is—and has been for 20 years. The National Law now requires that if any poisons enter into a cough mixture, it must be printed on the label or package. For this reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison-marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Refuse to accept any other. Sold by all dealers.

a corn-cob pipe in his mouth, which is sweeter to him than anything else. Cookeville is ninety miles from Nashville on the old Tenn. C. R. R. Coal and timber are plenty here and whiskey scarce. No license here for many years. By the way, a very strong temperance wave is sweeping over the state of Tennessee. At a recent election in Bristol, out of the whole city only seventeen votes were cast for wet, so that your townsman, who comes there now and then to visit his pa-in-law, will have to bring a supply of "Hughes" with him if he wants to cut the cobwebs out of his throat. Knoxville, Tenn., voted last week on wet or dry. There was a parade of some five thousand, singing temperance songs, at the polls. The ladies served lunches all day, sang and prayed and won the day for dry by over two thousand. Joe Lossy and family, of Chattanooga, are preparing to attend Old Home Week. Push it along.

"In 1897 I had a stomach disease. Some physicians said Dyspepsia, some Consumption. One said I would not live until Spring. For four years I existed on boiled milk, soda biscuits, and doctors' prescriptions. I could not digest anything I ate; then I picked up one of your Almanacs and it happened to be my life-saver. I bought a fifty-cent bottle of KODOL and the benefit I received from that bottle all the gold in Georgia could not buy. In two months I went back to my work, as a machinist, and in three months I was well and hearty. May you live long and prosper."—O. N. Cornish, Rodding, Ga., 1906. The above is only a sample of the great good that is daily done everywhere by Kodol For Dyspepsia. It is sold here by Ed. D. Heckerman.

The relief of Coughs and Colds through laxative influence, originated with Bee's Laxative Cough Syrup containing Honey and Tar, a Cough Syrup containing no opiates or poisons, which is extensively sold. Secure a bottle at once, obtain a guarantee coupon, and if not fully satisfied with results, your money will be refunded. Sold by Irvine's Drug Store.

The Origin of Easter The word Easter, derived from the Anglo-Saxon "Eastra," or, in Teutonic, "Ostara," the goddess of dawn or spring, whose chief festival was celebrated about the time of the vernal equinox, is probably of the same root with East, signifying "bright" or "shining." The Germans to this day call April the "Ostermonat."

You should be very careful of your bowels when you have a cold. Nearly all other cough syrups are constipating, especially those containing opiates. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup moves the bowels—contains no opiates. Conforms to National Pure Food and Drugs Law. Bears the endorsement of mothers everywhere. Children like its pleasant taste. Sold by Ed. D. Heckerman.

PILLS AND PILES A prolific cause of Piles is the use of cathartics and pills of a drastic, violent nature, which is always followed by a reaction on account of the resinous, drying properties they contain.

There are other causes, but no matter what the cause or what the kind of Piles, Dr. Leonard's Hem-Roid can be relied upon to cure—to stay cured.

It's an internal remedy that removes the causes of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Suppurating Piles.

A guarantee goes with each package containing a month's treatment. It can be obtained for $1.00 at F. W. Jordan's, Bedford, Pa., or Dr. Leonard's Co., Niagara Falls, N. Y.

GIVEN UP TO DIE B. Spiegel, 1204 No. Virginia St., Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago had to abandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was practically given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle I was entirely cured." Why not let it help you? Ed. D. Heckerman.

Squeezing the Grapes. "In wine making," said a wise expert, "the grapes are squeezed from one to six times, and from each squeeze a different grade of wine is made." That is why from one district and from one firm so many varieties of wine come. These varieties don't mean that each is made from a different kind of grape. They mean, as a rule, that they are made from different squeezes of the same grape. The first squeeze of course makes the best and dearest wine. When you buy this grade you will always find on the label the words "Premier Cru," first squeeze.

Trials of the Types. A laughable error occurred in one of the large publishing houses a number of years ago. A poet had sent in a manuscript in which was the line, "See the pale martyr in a sheet of fire." The reputation of the writer was nearly ruined when the work came out with the line, "See the pale martyr with his shirt on fire."

When a favorite speaker rose and was greeted with thunderous applause his party paper came out and said, "The vast concourse rent the air with their snouts."

Think Lightly of It.

The road to home happiness is said to lie over small stepping stones. So small sometimes are the causes of our unhappiness that we wonder the consequences can be so great. One great palliative is the determination by every member of the family not to dwell on the circumstances, whatever they may be, which are alike sad to all. If it be poverty let it be cheerfully and silently borne; if it be the ill temper of grandpa try to make a joke of it. If it be something infinitely worse and also hopeless accept it bravely; do not talk of it. Try in the family circle to ignore it. Accept every little enlivening circumstance. Let in all the sun and air. Work on cheerily and hopefully, knowing that there is the ray of sunshine somewhere that has only to be looked for to be found.

In the treatment of piles it becomes necessary to have the remedy put up in such a form that it can be applied to the parts affected. Mar-Zan Pile remedy is encased in a collapsible tube with nozzle attached. It cannot help but reach the spot. Relieves blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles, 50c with nozzle guaranteed. Try it. Sold at Irvine's Drug Store.

Antiquity of Easter Cards The custom of sending Easter cards dates back to the second year after Christ and antedates, by several centuries, the habit of sending Christmas gifts.

NO CASE ON RECORD

There is no case on record of a cough or cold resulting in pneumonia or consumption after Foley's Honey and Tar has been taken, as it will stop your cough and break up your cold quickly. Refuse any but the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in a yellow package. Contains no opiates and is safe and sure. Ed. D. Heckerman.

Is Your Money Working? What Does It Earn For You?

If it is earning less than 12 per cent. per annum it will pay you to read this advertisement. We can make it earn that or more for you. The INDUSTRIAL SHOE COMPANY of Brockton, Mass., is overwhelmed with orders, and in order to fill them promptly and keep pace with its constantly growing business, it is obliged to immediately increase its facilities for manufacturing.

In order to raise the money necessary for this purpose, and to open retail stores of its own, the Company offers for general and immediate subscription 15,000 shares of its Capital stock, with guaranteed earnings of not less than 12 per cent. per annum, at the par value of $5.00 each.

The Industrial Shoe Company is a Massachusetts corporation with an authorized capital of $100,000, all of which is Treasury Stock, Fully-paid and Non-assessable, and is engaged in the manufacture and sale of fine shoes, which are produced and sold under such conditions that a steady and uniform profit of from 12 to 50 per cent. per annum is positively assured.

That the profits of the Company will be large and constant may be readily seen when it is known that its present average profit is 25 cents per pair, and that the amount received from the sale of this stock will furnish sufficient capital to increase its daily output to 1,200 pair of fine shoes.

We believe this to be the greatest opportunity ever offered to make your money earn money, by putting it into a legitimate manufacturing enterprise, which will stand the closest investigation, and whose shares are sold at a price which enables every one to become the owner of one or more.

This is one company which welcomes the person with only five or ten dollars to spare for investment as gladly as the one with larger capital.

The offer is for immediate subscription only and is subject to withdrawal without notice at any time.

We believe it will pay you to investigate, and we cordially invite you to send for further particulars, subscription blanks, etc.

Address, Edward E. Messervy, Treasurer, Dept. A-38,

Industrial Shoe Co., Brockton, Mass.

LETTER TO W. B. MILLER
Bedford, Pa.

Dear Sir: You may like to know what you pay for the paint in a gallon of "paint," assuming the pure paint part of all "paints" to be all alike; which it isn't; and worth $1.75 a gallon.

Of a paint adulterated 10 per cent, the pure-paint part brings $1.94 a gallon.

15 per cent brings $2.06 a gallon
25 " " 2.33 "
33 1-3 " 2.62 "
50 " 3.50 "
75 " 7.00 "

The average adulteration of paint in this country is about one-third; so, you see, the average price the American people are paying for paint is about $2.62 a gallon.

It is a game of wits. Adulterators are always too sharp for the bulk of consumers. People won't pay $1.75 a gallon for paint. So they pay $2.62 a gallon for paint and something that looks like paint mixed with it. (They pay the painter, besides, from $2 to $4 for painting those useless gallons.)

Why do they do it? They don't know Devote.

Yours truly

F. W. DEVOE & CO

On Monday Governor Stuart issued a proclamation naming April 5 and 19 as Arbor Days in this state. PROGRESS IN THE WEST

The New Wine—Orange and Beef Industries.

The typical Western man is a boomer. He is ever looking for virgin fields and follows the lines of least resistance; he wastes no time but keeps step with the procession—usually a little in advance. He seems to have a sublime confidence in the future; he has not only the faculty to see visions but the energy to make these visions realities. It matters not whether he is selling groceries, managing a railroad or running for office; he keeps himself and his business well before the public. His capital stock is the sale of opportunities. He is a promoter from choice, necessity and the force of habit.

Every community has its strong points as a place of residence or as a commercial or manufacturing center. Everything that goes to make life pleasant and profitable, either in a social or business way, is a public asset and has a distinct and actual commercial value. Publicity is the key to twentieth century business success.

In the settlement of our unoccupied domain and in the development of our resources of the west, the railroad corporations have played an important part. Their interests are identical with those of the hustling towns that are looking for people and business.

The American people are migratory; always ready to investigate and invest. More money has been spent by foolish advertising than it takes to run the federal pension department. The advertising field has been the favorite herding ground of the fakir, yet hundreds of towns in the northwest have been actually born anew. They are prosperous and growing more so; they are the direct product of modern municipal advertising. Now, let us ask why these prosperous, thrifty cities of the northwest cannot secure their full share of the tourists and pleasure-seekers from the east.

Spokane has much of interest and a climate, especially through June, July and August, that is unsurpassed. Seattle is very attractive, from every standpoint, for the greater part of the year. Aberdeen, a city of 12,000, is one of the best on the Pacific Coast, with many attractions and opportunities for business or pleasure every month in the year. This country has as good hotels and as fine scenery as Europe has. Two hundred and fifty thousand people are going somewhere each year. As matters now stand, most of them go to Europe. They go because it is cheaper, because the provisions for their comfort, amusement and entertainment are better. They can visit the Alps from New York, easier and cheaper than the Yellowstone Park. These are facts and will remain facts until the railroad managers and hotel men make many very radical changes. They must give the people good accommodations at a fair price. They must clip the claws of the wolves who would take the earnings of a month in payment for a week's board and lodging. When they do this the Eastern people will see America first.

The true spirit of the west is best illustrated by the progress that has been made in the orange and beef industries. In 1792 the seedling orange and the long horned cattle were both prominent in Southern California. From 1840 to 1875 the orange industry did not merit attention. In 1872 our American Consul to Brazil obtained several shoots of a seedless orange found in a swamp on the bank of the Amazon. These shoots were sent to Washington, where four of them fell into the hands of Mrs. L. C. Tibbits of Riverside, Cal. Two of these shoots lived and five years later produced sixteen oranges. Being seedless, this new orange had to be produced by budding, which buds sold for one dollar each. In 1880 the first box of navel oranges was gathered in California. In 1903 President Roosevelt assisted in the ever-useful shovel in transplanting the one surviving parent navel, the mother of a great industry. The next year a box of fine oranges from this tree found its way to the White House as a slight token for the services rendered.

Last year more than eleven million boxes of citrus fruit, filling 31,422 cars, were shipped from Southern California. It is the New that wins in the west.

They have stopped growing cattle and are now growing beef. They have discovered that legs and horns are the least edible portion of the beef animal. Slowly the complexion of the western herds began to change. It may be seen that quality has begun to count as against quantity both in orange and ox. The game today is to get the steer to marketable size when eighteen months old and weighing about 1,200 pounds.

You could never put your industrial finger on the range steer. His numbers and his qualities were always a problem. Ten years ago the shorthorn cross was in full evidence. Beef was shorter in horn and leg all over the west. The 2,000-pound steer is fast passing, for fashions exist in beef as in all else. After him came the Jersey, the Alderney, the Holstein, but these passed from all beef plans as impossible of profit. Then came the steer, dehorned or hornless, all beef blocky, small boned with no waste before or after death; he is eighteen carat fine and has had eighteen months luxury. He, with the navel orange, is a new product of the new west and both have come to stay.
